

Global Perspectives Film Series

featuring
Hidden Pictures

Thursday, October 5
Noon, ACB 240

Filmmaker Delaney Ruston experienced the silence that surrounds mental illness from her own family experience. When she learns that 450 million people globally have a mental health condition she realizes their plight is the most hidden of all. How are people accepted or rejected? What is mental health care like? Who is helping?

In HIDDEN PICTURES Ruston takes us on her journey to answer these questions, uncovering deeply personal stories in India, South Africa, China, France, and the US. Powerful narratives involving bipolar illness, depression, schizophrenia, and anxiety, show the universality of our seemingly different worlds.

What emerges through the film's exploration are scenes of true compassion that remind us that we all have the power to help make the hidden pictures of mental illness become a thing of the past.

Free pizza will be provided!

This film is being co-sponsored by the Family Medicine Interest Group (FMIG) & the American Medical Student Association (AMSA) as part of National Primary Care Week.

This event is free and open to the public. No RSVP is necessary.
